The Story of 2012

How Senate Bill 24 Becomes a Law
The KEY PLAYERS

CONNCAN
Our passionate staff & Board of Directors

ADVOCATES
Fired up families, community members, clergy leaders, and e-advocates

PARTNER ORGANIZATIONS
Leading education, community, and business groups that care just as deeply as we do about improving Connecticut public education

GOVERNOR MALLOY
Connecticut’s 88th governor, sworn into office in January 2011

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
Administrative agency that oversees Connecticut’s school system

EDUCATION COMMITTEE
The legislative gatekeepers for all things education, including the major reforms proposed in 2012

BLACK AND PUERTO RICAN CAUCUS
Connecticut’s legislators of color, united to promote an agenda that supports their constituents and their communities

CONNECTICUT GENERAL ASSEMBLY
The entire legislative body, required to vote before a bill becomes a law
FEBRUARY 2012: THE YEAR FOR EDUCATION REFORM

Governor Malloy hosts a statewide workshop on education reform solutions for Connecticut, and spends the next month promoting his vision for reform.

FEBRUARY THE STATE OF THE STATE

Governor Malloy speaks out on the importance of education in the 2012 legislative session.

"I am determined to fix our public schools. I do not think it will be easy, nor do I think it will happen overnight. But it will happen. It must happen."

Governor Dannel Malloy
SENATE BILL 24 IS BORN

The governor’s reform proposal is raised in legislative committee, weighing in at a whopping 164 pages.

KEY PROPOSALS:

1. Teacher Evaluations
   Raise the bar for entrance into the teaching profession, improve teacher and principal evaluation systems, and tie tenure decisions to classroom performance.

2. School Funding
   Create a statewide common chart of accounts, increase per-pupil funding for charter schools, and set aside conditional funding for the “Alliance Districts,” the lowest-performing school districts.

3. School Turnarounds
   Develop the Commissioner’s Network to turn around up to 25 of the state’s lowest-performing schools.

THANK YOU, GOVERNOR MALLOY!

Over 1,000 advocates sign a petition to thank Governor Malloy for his education reform plan.
ConnCAN releases our summary of Senate Bill 24: Breaking down the bill in plain language and giving our take on the governor’s education reform plan.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

February 21 & 22

The Education Committee and Appropriations Committee hold three public hearings on Senate Bill 24. ConnCAN, our partners, and supporters of education reform — including Governor Malloy himself — speak out in support of key pillars of the bill.

“I want to walk into school on Monday and know that I did one of my most important jobs as a teacher — I advocated for kids.”

George Gianakakos, Bridgeport Public School Teacher

“I may be a student, but I know what a great teacher looks like, and I have had some of them. They have changed my life and made me love learning and believe in myself. That is why I believe this committee should pass Senate Bill 24.”

Edwin Rosales, Norwalk Public School Student

“Our public schools once led the nation, and now Connecticut leads in achievement gaps. Education is the civil rights issue of our time. This is our opportunity. The time is now to change the status quo.”

Governor Dannel Malloy
ConnCAN releases a survey of 400 teachers and principals. The results clearly show that Connecticut’s educators support the types of reforms included in Senate Bill 24.

Governor Malloy takes Senate Bill 24 on the road, kicking off a series of 13 town hall meetings across the state. ConnCAN staff and advocates attend every event.
Waiting for committees to vote on Senate Bill 24, over 2,000 advocates sign ConnCAN’s petition asking the legislators to stay true to Governor Malloy’s proposals.

ConnCAN and our partners debunk some myths while setting the record straight with facts about Senate Bill 24.
STILL WAITING

Education reform advocates send over 800 letters to lawmakers, asking them to demonstrate leadership and support Governor Malloy’s proposal.

A WEAK SUBSTITUTE

Education Committee releases a new version of Senate Bill 24 that weakens teacher evaluations, school funding, and school turnarounds.
MORE WAITING
March 26 - May 07

Education Committee chairs and legislative leadership begin negotiating on Senate Bill 24. ConnCAN works to influence these talks from the outside.

THE GOVERNOR SPEAKS OUT

Governor Malloy sends an open letter to the General Assembly.

“To those who say we can wait, I respectfully say you’re wrong. We can’t wait. We’ve waited long enough.”

ConnCAN releases a summary of the new, weakened version of Senate Bill 24. We outline our concerns with the revisions and offer suggestions for improvement.

A MEDIA STORM

ConnCAN, our partners, and our advocates publish op-eds against the Education Committee’s revisions. Thanks in part to our outreach, leading newspapers publish editorials in support of Governor Malloy’s original education proposals – and question legislators’ leadership on such important issues.
THE STATE BOARD STEPS IN

Connecticut’s State Board of Education issues a unanimous resolution urging lawmakers to restore Senate Bill 24.

WE SPEAK OUT

ConnCAN stands publicly with well-respected education and business partners, hosting a press conference to explain why we’re against the revisions to Senate Bill 24.
Advocates send over 250 emails to lawmakers, urging them to support the original Senate Bill 24.

Governor Malloy joins advocates, students, and families who rally at the Capitol in support of his original proposals.
CLERGY LEADERS AT THE CAPITOL

With support from ConnCAN, a group of faith-based leaders from across Connecticut host a press conference and meet with Governor Malloy and legislative leaders to express how vitally important education is to their communities.

A LEAK

A bill summary is leaked, revealing plans to weaken Senate Bill 24 even further. We issue an immediate public statement in opposition, asking legislators to take a stand on reform and act on behalf of Connecticut’s students.
The Black and Puerto Rican Caucus speaks out publicly in support of education reform, presenting a set of recommendations to make Senate Bill 24 even stronger.

Governor Malloy announces that negotiations are coming to an end and a compromise has been reached. After a long night of debate, the bill is passed in the Senate and House.

Senate: 28 – 7
House: 149 – 0
VICTORY AT LAST

Governor Malloy signs the landmark education reform package into law as Public Act 12-116

THE STORY DOESN’T END THERE

ConnCAN releases our report, Measuring Teacher Effectiveness: A look “under the hood” of teacher evaluation at ten sites, to give policymakers and school leaders the tools they need to design effective educator evaluation systems informed by current best practices.
CLOSE-UP ON CONTRACTS

ConnCAN launches its Teacher Contract Database, a comprehensive database of teacher collective bargaining agreements from all 175 local education agencies in Connecticut.

BUILDING THE COALITION

ConnCAN hosts a summit for Connecticut education reformers, where we set goals to make sure we’re building off the success of 2012 to work together in service of our state’s children.
ConnCAN releases The Roadmap to Closing the Gap: 2012 – 2020, a research report outlining exactly what it will take to close Connecticut’s achievement gap by 2020.

Facing an unexpected budget deficit for 2013, Governor Malloy calls on the Connecticut General Assembly to come to session and approve a set of budget cuts. Of the $11 million cut from education spending, nearly half is cut from the key reforms that were just signed into law in May.
As you’re reading this, key reforms are still at risk of being weakened, under-funded, or cut altogether. But the state legislature and the governor have a responsibility to follow through on the promises they made in 2012.

Our state's children deserve a world-class public education – regardless of wealth, race, or zip code. ConnCAN will keep fighting to protect progress for Connecticut’s students, and we need your help.
Thank you so much for viewing
